

THE WORK OF A LIFETIME – I'm Sorry

Lyrics & Music: Susan Colin

If I told you I'm sorry would that make it go away?
If I told you I love you would that make you want to stay?
Do words make a difference? Does that make everything OK?
I'm sorry. I love you. I'll try harder starting today

We fall into these cruel patterns, harsh reactions we didn't plan
Once I said it, once I did it, it became a part of who I am
Did I mean it? Did I think it?
I'll tell you now, when I look back I'm not sure
Was it anger? Was it sadness? Was I afraid?
There's so much to be afraid of and afraid for

But the damage that I created - It's not fair to you, no not at all
And it's not who I want to be, or what I'll be remembered for
I will learn a way to be better, to be kinder,
'cause that's what you deserve
There's a new way we will be talking
And if you let me
We'll make this family into a family where we share
And we can trust
I'm so sorry, and I love you
